LOCAL NOTES.

The stages come in crowded with passengers every day.

Best California butter reduced to 75 cents per roll at Sydow & Kieck's.

Henry Dubacher, the popular brewer of Bisbee, has been spending a day or two in the city.

Lee Abbott and wife are over from Bisbee on a pleasure trip.

Stanselle, the necromancer, at Schieffelin Hall Thursday and Friday. Reserved seats at Walker's cigar store.

Just received by the Cochise H. & T. Co. a large and elegant line of neck wear, all of the latest styles and nobbiest designs; also silk overshirts—a novelty.

The gambling last pay day at Bisbee is said to have been heavier than ever before in the history of that camp.

John Montgomery returned from Bisbee yesterday with a team of horses which had been hired of him, and not being returned for several days he concluded to look after it and found it at Adams' stable in Bisbee, where the man had put the team up and skipped.

The largest single shipment of clothing ever received in Tombstone has just been unpacked at Sydow & Kieck's.

The Copper Queen Consolidated Mining Company paid, February 1st, dividend No. 3, of fifty cents a share, aggregating $70,000, making $210,000 paid to date.

P. O. S. of A.

Tickets for the ball on the 22nd inst. for sale at Pete's and Yonge's drug store, Joe Brown's book store and Seaman's jewelry store. Tickets sold to those only having invitations.

The probability of George Hearst and associates getting hold of a large and paying copper property at Bisbee is bordering on an almost certainty. Several properties have been bonded to them and that they will take hold of them is almost beyond peradventure.

We have this day reduced the price of the celebrated J. E. D. fresh ranch butter to 80c per roll. Shipments received regularly every three days.

Cochise H. & T. Co.

Mr. E. S. Adam, of Bisbee, came over from the copper camp yesterday and returned to day. He loaded two cars with lumber at Fairbank which will be unloaded at his yard at Bisbee.

The velocity of the wind for the last twenty-four hours knocked the smith-crines out of our indicator, which was not evidently built to test the speed of an Arizona zephyr, although it is guaranteed to bear up under a Dakota blizzard.

Stanselle, the necromancer, gives two of his magical performances at Schieffelin Hall Thursday and Friday next.

Allen English is said to be a candidate for appointment to one of the circuit judgeships in case the bill before the Legislature becomes a law.

One tenth of an inch of rain fell in Tombstone for the 24 hours ending February 14th at 11 p. m.

Two young gentlemen desire to rent a small house of two or three rooms, plainly furnished; are quiet and steady and first-class pay. Call at this office.

A DEAD SHOT.

West Fuller Kills His Brother-in-Law and Skips.

A Drunken Row in Which an Unarmed Man is The Victim.

Fuller Borrows a Pistol of a Deputy Sheriff to Commit The Crime.

The Country Being Scoured for the Assassin, but Unsuccessfully Thus Far.

The crack of a sixshooter, followed almost immediately afterward by a second report, rang out on the clear, crisp atmosphere last evening about ten o'clock in the neighborhood of the residence of Mayor Thomas. A representative of the Prospector was almost immediately afterward at the scene of the shooting, which turned out to be in front of the house adjoining the corral, and but three doors east of Sheriff Slaughter's residence on Fremont street.

From one party who saw the flashes of the two shots fired, it would seem that the two men were standing just off the platform or porch in front of the house, which is a frame building of two rooms. The flashes came down the street or towards the City Hall, and a man was seen to run to First street and disappear in the direction of the hills south of town. On the porch where he had been dragged by his mother, lay Fortino, a brother of Fuller's wife, bleeding profusely from a bullet wound in the left side. The groans of the suffering man and the moanings of his aged mother were enough to melt a heart of stone.

There is a mystery connected with the affair which seems to be difficult to clear up. Deputy Sheriff Alvord, Fuller and two or three Mexicans were in the house having a good time generally. Alvord was the only one having a pistol. The deceased went to go out of the door, and in doing so changed hats with one of the parties in the room. Fuller then seized the hat on Fortino's head, saying: "Let's change hats." Fortino objected, when Fuller replied, "yes, you must," or words to that effect, and seized hold of his victim. It seems that at this time the row became general. Fuller got possession of Alvord's pistol and following Fortino out of the door fired two shots at him, one of which took effect as above stated.

Fuller had been drinking heavily during the day and his wife, who was in the house at the time, had been trying to get him to bed prior to the shooting. Fortino was a hard working man and had just come in town with wood from the Dragon mountains. He was the sole support of the family, with whom Fuller spent most of the time. Alvord became possessed with the pistol after the shooting and appeared inside of the house where the dying man lay on a cot. Another difficulty arose between one of the Mexicans and Alvord, which caused the latter to pull his pistol. Mayor Thomas stepped in and stopped the row, after which the sheriff appeared on the scene with Deputy Cardigan, both armed with shotguns, and quieted the belligerents. Bob Hatch was the first officer on hand and set out with Ben Hyde to find Fuller. The sheriff and two deputies are also on the hunt.

Dr. Dunn attended the wounded man but the fatal shot had done its work and the unfortunate man breathed his last at one o'clock this a. m.

LATER.
 Some one of Fuller's friends in this city furnished him with a horse, and he was seen at Fairbank early this morning. Dispatches have been sent in all directions to intercept Fuller, and there is no doubt but that he will be captured before night.

The pistol with which the shooting was done is still in the possession of Fuller. Deputy Alvord having secured another one after the difficulty, with which he appeared on the scene the second time.

Ladies are astonished, children are amazed, gentlemen are pleased by the wonderful feats of Stanselle, the wizard.

Copper Glance.

When statistics of copper production were first kept, as far back as 1845, the whole United States only produced 112 tons a year.

The home consumption of 120,000,000 pounds in 1888 is some 20,000,000 pounds less than in 1887, caused by the advance in the price of copper.

The syndicate has had to take care of 255,000 tons of copper produced in 1888, and 60,000 tons in stock on January 1st, 1888; a total of 315,000 tons.

In one year, in this country, under the stimulus of high prices for copper, the product has increased from 180,920,521 pounds in 1887 to 231,000,000 in 1888.

The secretary of the Portuguese Consolidated copper mines advises a London exchange that a contract with the Societe Industrielle des Metaux has been concluded.

At the close of 1888, the Frenchmen were believed to be carrying 150,000 tons of copper. At an average cost of twelve cents a pound an investment of $40,000,000 is represented in that stock. It has been estimated that the consumption of copper in 1888 was 165,000 tons for the world.

Stanselle's Magical Entertainment.

The frequent and enthusiastic applause which greeted all the most attractive features of the performance at Schieffelin Hall last night was certainly an index to the sentiment of the audience, and if the general satisfaction to any criterion Stanselle will certainly have a crowded house to-night on his last appearance. Miss Belle Bertrand's startling re-appearance after being apparently transfixed with a sword and otherwise "conjured," set all tongues to wagging and brought down the house, while the "dream in the air" was a charming spectacle. As there will probably be a full house to-night owing to the favorable opinions expressed on all sides, it would be prudent to secure reserved seats early. A change of programme is announced.

Johnny Lassiter, who was arrested and denied bail, in connection with the recent killing in Graham county, has succeeded in having the decision of the Graham county Judge reversed, and has been admitted to bail through orders of the Supreme Court.

Let joy be unconfined and hilarity reign at the performances of Stanselle, the wizard.

The New Orleans Picayune has come to the conclusion that "a limited liability act prevents a man from paying more debts than suits his convenience."

Indiana alone has 375 natural gas wells, and the prediction that a large portion of the State will ultimately sink many feet is scaring the Hoosiers bald-headed.

There are not over 100 men in England who follow the Prince of Wales in any fashion of dress. Indeed, anything and everything is fashionable nowadays anywhere, and nobody is obliged to follow.

George Comar, a resident of Virginia City, claims to have been visited by Satan, and to have had a long talk with the old boy. He was told that everything was O. K. this winter, with business pushing his majesty day and night.

A Virginia State Senator has written to a member of the Michigan Legislature for information regarding the state liquor law. The reply should be "It got away soon after it was passed and we have not been able to recapture it."

A Long Island temperance lecturer pledges his converts to buy their beer by the case and drink it only at home, and in four weeks has ruined the business of fourteen saloons. It is a new idea, and one that hits the saloon-keeper below the belt.

The medical student who suicided in New York the other day left a message reading: "I die because there is no room for any more doctors." He must have been crazy. Hundreds of doctors are graduating every day and finding patients.
